HISTORICAL SKETCH.

THE Second Presbyterian Church, Indianapolis, was organized with fifteen members, November 19, 1838, by the Rev. James H. Johnston, in the Marion County Seminary, a small brick building, standing until 1860, at the south-west corner of University Square. The Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, the first pastor, entered upon his work, July 31, 1839. Worship was continued in the Seminary for a year; afterward, the congregation removed to their own edifice, on the north-west corner of Circle and Market streets, occupying, at first, the lecture room in the basement. This house was dedicated October 4, 1840. On the nineteenth of September, 1847, the pastorate of Mr. Beecher closed, and he removed to Brooklyn, New York. He was succeeded by the Rev. Clement E. Babb, at the time a student in Lane Seminary, now associate editor of the Herald and Presbyterian, Cincinnati. He commenced work May 7, 1848, and continued in the pastorate until January 1, 1853. It was under his supervision that a colony, now the Fourth Presbyterian Church, was established with twenty-four members. This occurred November 30, 1851. The third pastor, the Rev. Thornton A. Mills, began his work January 1, 1851, and remained with the church three years, the relation between pastor and people being dissolved by Presbytery, February 9, 1857. Dr. Mills, having been elected Secretary of the General Assembly's Committee on Education, went at once to New York. He is the only one of the pastors of the church not now living. He died suddenly, June 19, 1867. The Rev. George P. Tindall was his successor, called to the pastorate August 6, 1857, and continuing in the field until September 27, 1863. During his ministry, in 1858 and 1859, large numbers were added to the church. The present pastor has occupied the place since January 17, 1864. On the fifteenth of May of that year a building was dedicated, corner of Michigan and Blackford streets, for a mission Sabbath-school which had been established by members of the Second Church, and which has now grown into the Fifth Presbyterian Church. November 20, 1867, another colony, the Olivet Presbyterian Church, was formed with twenty-one members, a house of worship having been dedicated for them a month previous. On the eighth of May, 1870, Memorial Chapel, south-west corner of Christian avenue and Bellefontaine street, was dedicated, where a Sabbath-school and other religious services have since been maintained by members of the church. For the present house of worship, corner of Pennsylvania and Vermont streets, ground was broken in the spring of 1864. The corner-stone was laid May 14, 1866; the chapel was first occupied December 27, 1867; and the completed edifice was dedicated January 9, 1870.

CONFESSION OF FAITH AND COVENANT:

A FORM USED IN THE ADMISSION OF MEMBERS.

You have presented yourselves thus publicly before God, to enter into covenant with Him and to join yourselves with His visible people. We trust you have well considered the nature of these engagements. The transaction is solemn, and will be attended with eternal consequences. God is looking on. Your vows will be recorded in heaven to be exhibited on your trial at the last day.

You will attend to the Confession of Faith.

You believe that there is one God, the Father, Son and Holy Ghost, infinite, eternal and unchangeable in wisdom, power and love.

You believe that the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments are the Word of God, and the only infallible rule of faith and practice.

You believe that man is sinful by nature and practice, and that he needs to be born again of the Spirit of God.

You believe that Jesus Christ by His sufferings and obedience atoned for the sins of the world, and that we are justified by faith in Him.

You believe that there will be a resurrection of the body; that the Lord Jesus Christ will descend from heaven to judge the world; and that He will receive the saints to His heavenly kingdom, and doom the wicked to everlasting fire.

All this you heartily believe.

(Baptism will here be administered to those who have never duly received the ordinance.)

And now, in the presence of God and this assembly, you do solemnly dedicate yourselves to God the Father, as your rightful Sovereign and Chief Good; to God the Son, as your Prophet, Priest and King; and to God the Spirit, as your Sanctifier, Comforter and Guide. To this one God you do, in humble dependence, heartily give up yourselves in an everlasting covenant, to walk in all His commandments and ordinances blameless.

You do now, cordially join yourselves to this, as a Church of Jesus Christ, engaging to submit to its discipline, and solemnly covenanting to strive, as much as in you lies, for its peace, edification and purity; to walk with its members in Christian love, faithfulness, circumspection, meekness and sobriety; and abandoning the sinful pleasures and amusements of the world, to prove what is the good and acceptable and perfect will of God.

Thus you covenant and engage.

(The members of the Church will here rise.)

And we do now affectionately receive you into our fellowship. We agree to watch over you with the meekness and fidelity becoming saints, and as we welcome you to the privileges and hopes of our high calling in Christ Jesus, so do we pledge you our sympathies and prayers, while you share with us the toils, trials and temptations of the Christian life.

Do not forget, beloved in the¹ Lord, that you have entered into solemn relations from which you can never escape. Wherever you go, and whatever you are, these vows will be upon you. They will follow you to the bar of God, and in whichever world you may be fixed they will abide upon you to eternity. Hereafter, the eyes of the world will be upon you, and as you demean yourselves, so religion will be honored or disgraced. If you walk worthy of your profession you will be a credit and a comfort to us; but if it be otherwise, you will be to us a grief of heart and a vexation. And if there is a woe pronounced on him who lays a stumbling block before one of Christ's little ones, woe, woe to the person who does this to a whole church. "But, beloved, we are persuaded better things of you, and things that accompany salvation, though we thus speak." May the Lord guide you till death, and at last receive you and us to that blessed world where our love and joy shall be forever perfect. Amen.

Let us pray.

SYSTEMATIC BENEVOLENCE.

We desire to remember that we are "stewards," not proprietors, and that it is our duty, as it certainly is a privilege and an honor, in all the use of God's property entrusted to our care, to have chiefly in view the glory of our Redeemer and the welfare of our fellow-men. We believe that every Christian ought to enjoy the blessedness of cheerful, considerate systematic, prayerful giving, "as God hath prospered him." As members of the Presbyterian Church, we wish loyally to support the benevolent work which the General Assembly, so largely guided by Christian wisdom and experience, has devised. That benevolent work includes:

I. FOREIGN MISSIONS.—"Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." Matt. xxviii. 19. The Kingdom of our Lord is to become universal through the labors of His people. Of these labors, He claims from us our share.

II. HOME MISSIONS.—"Beginning at Jerusalem." Luke xxiv: 47. Every consideration of patriotism and Christianity requires us to aid in the Evangelization of our own land.

III. FREEDMEN'S CAUSE.—"Blessed is he that considereth the poor." Psalm xli: 1. The peculiar condition and special wants of the freedmen call for special attention and care.

IV. EDUCATION.—"Pray ye, therefore, the Lord of the harvest, that He would send forth laborers into His harvest." Luke x: 2. It is intended that no properly qualified young man desiring to educate himself for the ministry, shall be obliged to relinquish that purpose for lack of means.

V. PUBLICATION.—“Let there be light.” Genesis i: 3. Papers, tracts and books, printed by our Publication Board, in behalf of evangelical religion and in illustration of Presbyterian history, polity and doctrine, upon proper application, are gratuitously distributed in needy fields, at home and abroad.

VI. CHURCH ERECTION.—“He loveth our nation, and He hath built us a synagogue.” Luke vii: 5. Without a house, the congregation languishes. It is economical and wise to secure the rapid growth and early independence of mission churches by aiding them to build.

VII. SUSTENTATION.—“For the laborer is worthy of his hire.” Luke x: 7. The salaries of settled pastors, serving generous but small and feeble churches, are supplemented to prevent suffering and secure a degree of comfort.

VIII. MINISTERIAL RELIEF.—“But if any provide not for his own, and especially for those of his own house, he hath denied the faith, and is worse than an infidel.” 1 Timothy v: 8. Men left without means of support, after a life's service of the church in the ministry, and needy widows and orphans of deceased clergymen of our church, are aided upon the recommendation of Presbytery.

In order that we may better advance this Benevolent Work in its various departments, according to the principles stated above, the Session have adopted for future use, the following PLAN.

1. A collection shall be taken on the third Sabbath of each month, of which nine-tenths shall be distributed to the eight branches of our Benevolent Work described above, pro rata, (in proportion to the several amounts appropriated by the General Assembly, for the current year,) and the remaining tenth shall be reserved for appropriation by the Session, to miscellaneous charities deserving our aid. The contributions of individuals preferring a different distribution of their gifts, shall be appropriated according to their wishes, whenever made known. Any balance subject to the Session's order, remaining in the treasury, on the first day of May, in each year, shall then be distributed pro rata as before.

2. On the second Sabbath of January in each year, cards and envelopes shall be distributed in the pews explaining this plan, and inviting all members of the congregation to designate the several amounts they desire to contribute monthly during the year. These cards and envelopes, with the first month's contribution, shall be collected on the following Sabbath. On the Sabbath previous to each succeeding monthly collection envelopes shall also be distributed to be returned as before.
